Introduction to Intergenerational Programs
An on-line course presented through Generations Together Intergenerational Studies Institute and the School of Social Work Continuing Education Program

Overview
This course is an on-line, interactive experience based on the 13-year success of Generations Together Intergenerational Training Institute at the University of Pittsburgh. The course is designed to help you develop the skills needed for success in the intergenerational field. Students read course materials, do on-line assignments, discuss the content with fellow students and instructors, and follow step-by-step procedures to complete the individual units.

The user-friendly course will enable you to contact others involved in this work, to share ideas, and to network as you develop your knowledge and skills in this exciting field. Students learn useful, concrete principles that can help you to enhance your own professional development and the work that you do. After you have completed the course, you will have a better understanding of skills needed to develop intergenerational programs and how to apply them.

The course faculty brings a wealth of real-life, hands-on, practical and academic experience working with intergenerational programs. The faculty is experienced in intergenerational work and is eager to help you move forward and become a member of a growing population of professionals working in this rewarding field.
